TOOK BONES FOR SOUVENIRS.
THE FIRST BRINGS BACK A SKELETON FROM BULL RUN.

About Twenty Members of Company B Found Bones on the Famous Battlefield—They Brought Open a Grave to Give Them—From a Piece of Blue Cloth Found in the Grave They Think It is a Skeleton of a Union Soldier.

Apparently there's trouble ahead for the Seventy-first Regiment. The bones of a soldier have been removed from the resting-place in the battle-ground at Bull Run by members of this regiment, and what the consequences will be no one knows just now. The regiment went to Bull Run last Friday night to celebrate the twenty-seventh anniversary of that famous battle. The members reached Fredericksburg on Saturday and Bull Run on Sunday. They were handsomely entertained by their hosts and enjoyed themselves immensely.

They roamed over the battle-field and discussed the positions and engagements of the regiment that memorable day. On one occasion, and compared notes with their Confederate hosts until Sunday night when they started home, stopping at Washington on the way. They arrived in New York Tuesday morning.

The boys searched over the battle-field for souvenirs, and finding a skeleton of a soldier, several thought a few of the bones would be desirable as reminders of that occasion. The bones were buried in a hole in the ground, and the boys brought them home.

Surgeon E. T. Varah told an Evening World reporter about it this morning. "About eighteen or twenty members of Company B were walking over the battle-field in search of souvenirs."

"They came to a little gully about six feet deep which had been washed out by water. On the side of this gully was a little mound which attracted the attention of one of the boys."

"It looked like a grave, and when one of the boys stirred up its surface a skeleton was revealed."

"The men were interested at once, and with sticks and knives they opened the grave as best they could."

"The soil is as hard as a rock, so the men began to dig with their hands. They found a piece of blue cloth and a button which proved that the dead man was a Union soldier."

"The men told about their discovery when they joined the rest of the regiment, and it was talked over freely. Some thought the poor soldier was one of those of our regiment who was never accounted for."

"Private M. O'Brien, physician, was one of the boys who unearthed the skeleton, but I do not know any others. I am certain the whole skeleton was not taken, but I should not wonder if some of the long bones—those of the arm and thigh—were carried away."

"I suppose if I had been there I would have taken a bone, too."

"Sergeant Bonestell, of Company K, who is at present on duty at the armory, corner Forty-third and Broadway, proposed to know nothing about the matter."

When he was told about it he laughed and thought it was a grand joke. If the boys secured some bones they would have them. It was rumored that Gov. Lee, of Virginia, had communicated with Gov. Hill on the subject, but an Evening World reporter was unable to see either Gov. Hill or his secretary at Albany this morning.

The Big Jo-Jo Timmer Raft.
OFFICIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. I. O. O. F. are trying to induce the Government to prevent the capture of the big Jo-Jo timmer raft for navigation. Owners of small craft claim that if it is released it will be a danger to their business.

The Day in Wall Street.
The most important item of news. Wall street today was, first, the announcement that Judge Brewer had granted a preliminary injunction against the Iowa Railway Commissioners, and second, the declaration of a strike by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Co. Both served to increase the bullish feeling on stocks and higher prices were noted.
